Objectives

Students who earn a Gender Studies minor will achieve the following student learning outcomes (SLO), as evidenced by the relevant Performance Indicators (PI):

Student Learning Outcome 1. Demonstrate an understanding of the interconnection of gender, race, class, ethnicity, and religion as constructs through which differences appear in various institutions and societies.

- PI: Student can explain how gender is a social construction.
- PI: Student can assess how lived experiences differ across multiple social locations.
- University SLO: Critical Thinking and Problem Solving

Student Learning Objective 2. Demonstrate an understanding of the ways in which including a gender analysis enhances other fields of study.

- PI: Student can explain how recovering previously overlooked contributions of women and gender-non-conforming people have shaped a field of study of particular interest to the student (ex. Sociology, Literature, Theology).
- PI: Student can explain how applying a gender lens change commonly held conclusions within a specific field of study.
- University SLO: Breadth of Knowledge and Integrative Learning

Student Learning Objective 3. Demonstrate appreciation for gender equality and inclusion as part of a larger social justice vision.

- PI: Student can identify negative consequences of failing to include a specific focus on gender in social justice work.
- PI: Student can provide at least one specific example of their personal efforts to promote gender justice.
- University SLO: Social Responsibility
