The library also seeks to support the General Education Curriculum which is at the heart of our liberal arts-based system of curricular and co-curricular electives in areas representing multiple disciplinary approaches and modes of problem-solving. Benedictine's courses are designed to represent critical skill and knowledge areas for active and responsible citizenship and stewardship of the Earth, lifelong learning, global awareness, integrative knowledge and effective interpersonal communication.

In accordance with the University's mission, the library endeavors to enhance the University's Roman Catholic tradition and Benedictine heritage, the culturally diverse demographics of the Benedictine community, and the commitment to assist students in becoming responsible citizens and leaders in the world community. The library will also share its resources with outside communities, including the broader academic community and local users.

The Information Literacy Curriculum offered by the library covers all coursework and is designed to help students at all levels to find, evaluate, use, analyze and share information and construct knowledge in a clear, compelling and ethical manner. They are led by instructional assistants who have successfully completed the course and have been identified by faculty members as individuals who possess both content knowledge and the ability to communicate that knowledge to fellow students. Subject areas that are typically supported by these sessions include accounting, biology, chemistry, economics, physics, psychology and the humanities. The availability and times of tutoring sessions vary by semester.

Study Skills

The Academic Support Center assists students with the development of general study skills to improve performance and reduce stress associated with college study. The Office of Career and Personal Development takes a customized approach to the services it offers to students, alumni, employers, faculty, and staff – helping these valuable members of the Benedictine community to thrive.

Students and Alumni:

We work closely with students and alumni to understand their career goals and provide individualized guidance on how to achieve them. We view career development as part of the academic process. We help students with key career readiness elements, so they are equipped with the tools they need to meet and exceed their goals. We do this by:

- Facilitating an understanding of self-including passions, values, interests, strengths, skills, and goals.
- Encouraging exploration and open-mindedness to career possibilities.
- Providing meaningful learning experiences.
- Facilitating connections with employers and alumni that lead to mentoring relationships, internship opportunities and career opportunities.

Employers:

The Office of Career and Personal Development cultivates employer partnerships. We help to connect Benedictine candidates with jobs and internships by maintaining close communication with employer partners to ensure understanding, trust, and cooperation when developing employment opportunities. These relationships allow us to coach students properly and successfully on skills, techniques, and tactics to land their job and accomplish their career goals.

Faculty and Staff:

We collaborate with faculty and staff to equip students with tools that will help them successfully attain the careers they aspire to. We do this by delivering classroom presentations and integrating career learning activities into the curriculum so that students develop skills in career exploration, resume writing, interviewing, networking, marketing themselves, and internship and job searching.

Residence Life

Benedictine University maintains and operates two residence halls and the Founders' Woods apartments. They are an integral part of academic life in the belief that educational experiences are not solely contained to the classroom, laboratory, or library. The residence halls and apartments provide an opportunity for students to combine academic life with social development. Students must establish and test their own values, develop social skills, determine priorities, and learn to organize their time. Daily living with others encourages the development of a cooperative attitude, respect for individual rights, and a sense of group responsibility. As a result, students in the residence halls and apartments develop diverse communities that meet the needs of its members both individually and collectively, and create attitudes and skills necessary to progress toward the realization of those conditions which make up a healthy community.

Athletics

Our Athletics Department prepares every student-athlete to be a champion of leadership. We establish an atmosphere where academic distinction, personal integrity, respect for all others, community service, and athletic excellence are expected. We develop well-rounded and informed citizens who carry the Benedictine values now and throughout their lives.

The department maintains the standard of graduating informed and enlightened citizens into a global society. We establish a stance of competitive leadership in the Northern Athletics Collegiate Conference while consistently creating opportunities for regional and national competition.
